Limited Term Appointment: Instructor, Spanish & Latin American Studies

The Dalhousie University Department of Spanish & Latin American Studies seeks applications for a ten-month 50% limited term appointment (August 1-May 31) at the Instructor level in Spanish & Latin American Studies effective August 1, 2019. The position is subject to budgetary approval. The Instructor will teach courses in translation, advanced Spanish language, and Latin American Studies. The workload is equivalent to two full-credit (four half-credit) classes during the ten-month period.

Applicants preferably should have a Ph.D. in Spanish, and a background in translation. Applicants with an MA degree will be considered on an individual basis as well. Native or native-equivalent command of Spanish and English, as well as expertise in teaching the Spanish language at the undergraduate level, are required. The successful candidate will possess strong organizational and administrative skills. Candidates should provide an up-to-date curriculum vitae, statement of teaching interests and philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and the Self-Identification Questionnaire, which is available at www.dal.ca/becounted/selfid. These should be submitted electronically to the Search Committee at the following address:
